Post subject: Custom Username Color mod

This is a mod that allows users to change the color of their username after so many posts. This mod will require you to return your forum profile to be editable. We had disabled editing the forum profile in RN 2.4 to avoid confusion with the RN profile in Your Account.

If you want to add a background color to the color selector grid, you can do so by adding the following css to either the themes/ravennuke.css if you want all themes to have the same color background or you can add it to each themes forums css file to change it on a per theme basis. White seems to be the best color to use so

I would just put it in the ravennuke.css.

```
.simpleColorChooser { background-color:#ffffff; }
```

I noticed you mentioned this mod will require you to return your forum profile to be editable. Always had a question about that, why is it when you try to go too your profile from forums you get this message:

Attention!
Unless you are uploading an avatar you should be using Your Account to edit your profile.

Is their a reason why you can't edit your profile via forums?

We are trying to move away from the forums and towards a phpBB3 bridge in the future. We wanted people to get used to not having it so it won't be a shock when it is no longer there.
